If you were wondering whether getting vaccinated was safe, wonder no longer — it is both safe and highly important to your health at all stages of your life. Vaccines are strictly tested before they gain approval to be used. The ingredients in vaccines are trusted; they contain only parts of the virus they are designed to prevent, or a killed and inactive form of the virus. A normal immune system cannot get the disease the vaccine is trying to prevent from the vaccine itself. Statistically, the only thing more effective at reducing infectious diseases for humans is access to clean water. This shows how important vaccines are to human survival. Vaccines are such a powerful medicine because they prevent diseases entirely as opposed to simply treating them. Every year worldwide, vaccines prevent 2–3 million deaths while 1.5 million people die from sicknesses that vaccines deter. Not getting vaccinated is destructive not only to our own health, but to the health of all our loved ones as well, because infectious diseases can be spread to healthy people of all age groups.
